COLLABORATIVE STUDENT SPACE

The Library has opened a new Collaborative Student Space for NCC's Medical Surgical Nursing students (NUR105). Located in room L315, the space contains computers and a Smartboard™ to permit small groups of students to engage in student-organized study activities. Students can share documents, images, video, or websites, and can work without fear of disturbing others.

COLLECTION DEVELOPMENT DAY— 2015

The Library held its annual Collection Development Day on February 10, 2015. We were pleased to welcome faculty members from eleven academic departments. We extend our thanks to the Educational Resources Committee for assisting the Library Collection Development Committee with publicizing the event. It was one of our most successful Collection Development Days to date! We also thank attendees for the opportunity to highlight what the Library has to offer to the College community. In addition, we appreciate the feedback regarding selections and recommendations for various materials that will enhance the value of the collection.

Faculty who participated in the event and completed a survey qualified for a raffle prize of a $25 gift card from Barnes & Noble. Winners of the raffle for Collection Development Day 2015 were:

Stanley Berke (Theatre & Dance)
John DeSpagna (Accounting & Business)
Deborah Levine (Math/CSE/ITE)
Angela Oglesby (Math/CSC/ITE)

Congratulations to all! As always, we thank Barnes & Noble for providing the gift cards and the NCC Foundation for its continued support for this faculty development program. If you missed the event please note that you can still contribute! Please feel free to send recommendations and/or suggestions to the committee chair, Katrina Frazier, or Acquisitions Librarian, Sharon Russin ext. 2-6068.

FACULTY WORKSHOPS

Every semester the Library offers a series of faculty workshops on a variety of topics. We invite you to register for the following upcoming workshops.

Monday, April 13, 2015

All About ILLiad, 2-3:15 PM, L103

Description: This workshop will focus on ILLiad, NCC's online Interlibrary Loan system. Learn how to create an account, order materials and retrieve documents from the comfort of your own computer. The system saves time and trees by eliminating all paper forms. A must know process for anyone doing research or who might need materials from other libraries. Never pay for articles when the Library provides this free service!

LIBRARY EXHIBITS

During January and February, our exhibit cases showcased the work of Nassau Community College students and Black History Month. The work of the women artists was selected by our Art Department faculty and highlighted both items in ceramics as well as print illustration. We hope you got the opportunity to witness the work of these talented artists.

We also used the occasion to featured the work of Black Women Entertainers

APRIL EXHIBITS

April promises to be a busy month for Library exhibits. As we celebrate National Poetry Month our exhibit cases will honor the work of two award-winning NCC Poets. Professors Amy King and Mario Susko. We will also be recognizing the value of a strong literary heritage as we highlight National Library Week. See materials that will be used in conjunction with the 2015 Long Island Reads project. This year's featured book is The Museum of Extraordinary Things by Alice Hoffman. Prof. Darshna Katwala has promised us an informative display which will showcase the great work that is being done at NCC as part of the Day of Service.

Library Faculty and Staff Notes

Mr. Richard Erben, Circulation, was recently named Communications Director of the NCC Adjunct Faculty Association.

Prof. Arthur Friedman, Reference, presented a lecture to the LI Association of Jewish Libraries on March 18th. The topic of his presentation was "Privacy and Libraries: Protection vs Service."

Prof. Rosanne Humes was elected to the Collegewide Sabbatical Leave Committee.

The Library congratulates Alicia Sanchez (retired) on her selection as an Alumna of the Year, by the NCC Alumni Association.

We wish Prof. Marsha Spiegelman a speedy return to the Library as she recovers from a broken arm.
